With a niche in developing high quality commercial buildings in prime areas within the key districts of Chongqing, we are well-positioned to capitalize on the strong property market growth in Chongqing.

CHONGQING

Located at the cross-roads of East and West China, Chongqing has a land area of 82,400 sq.km., twice as large as Beijing, Tianjin and Shanghai combined, and is the most populous city in the PRC with a population of 30 million. In 1997, Chongqing became the fourth directly-administrated municipality in the PRC and was singled out as the economic centre of Western China. As one of the four directly-administrated municipalities in the PRC, Chongqing enjoys a high level of autonomy through its direct access to the Central Government. Chongqing has since benefited from the Central Government's favourable economic policies and achieved remarkable economic development, especially with the implementation of the Central Government's "Go West" campaign and the city's appointment as a "Special Economic Zone".

Indeed, President Hu Jintao personally singled out Chongqing as "an important economic growth area for China's West, an economic centre in the upstream area of Yangtze River, and a municipality with coordinated development for both urban and suburban areas".<sup>1</sup> Under the "Chongqing Urban and Rural Master Plan (2007 – 2020) (重庆市城乡总体规划 (2007 - 2020)", which was approved by the Central Government, Chongqing is set to achieve further social and economic development in the future.

PREMIUM QUALITY

Ying Li has developed a number of award winning buildings such as New York New York and the Future International Building, both of which have become iconic and landmark buildings in Chongqing.

On 12 May 2008, an earthquake of magnitude 8 struck northwestern Sichuan province of China. It was the most devastating earthquake in China in more than three decades. Thousands of people lost families and thousands of buildings were destroyed. After the Great Sichuan Earthquake, Chongqing Municipal Construction Commission conducted a thorough inspection on a number of skyscrapers, and found no flaws in Ying Li's Future International Building. Subsequently, the Chongqing Administration for Quality and Technology Supervision conducted inspections on all of Ying Li's projects, and confirmed that all our projects were not affected by the earthquake, a strong demonstration of the premium quality of our projects.
